JUXTAPOSITION

BRIEF STATEMENT

In this set of 12 images, I mainly took photos in the old city center in Wenzhou, China. It shows how fast the buildings and cities renew. The old structures are still there, but keep decaying.

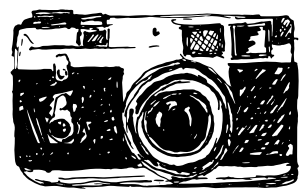

I want to represent a juxtaposition of the iteration, the old and new. I want to reflect on how we are moving faster and faster as each city becomes more alike, with tall buildings and landmarks. We look forward too much, and we start to ignore the present and the past. I wanted to remind myself and others about the traces of the past in the city.
